

INT. KERTH'S HOUSE

The interior of the house looks as though its in the middle of a demolition or remodeling. Walls are littered with holes and every window is boarded with planks of wood. A bald man with a scar on the right side of his forehead, wearing only his underwear and tank top, is sitting on his cushion-less sofa brandishing his Remington Model 870 Wingmaster shotgun.

APOLLYON

Get ready, pawn.

Kerth's eyes widen as he stops brandishing the shotgun. He tosses his towel aside and raises the shotgun closer to his head with both arms as if he were holding a baby. Bringing the shell chamber up to his ear.

KERTH

What was that my love?

APOLLYON

Danger will be arriving at your door, soon! I sense them coming. It is time we fulfill our purpose.

Kerth's attention is taken from the sound of an engine getting closer to his house. It goes quiet, and the sound of slamming doors can be heard.

APOLLYON (CONT'D)

Tsk! Their already here. Get ready!

Kerth moves his hands. His left hand placed under the barrel and his right gripping the handle. He leans forward, raising himself just a few centimeters from the sofa putting him in a squatting position. As raises himself, he gets flashed by a beam of light breaking through the openings between the barricades on his windows. As he readjust his eyes, he notices that light seeping through his room is a rich-red color. Kerth seems startled.

APOLLYON (CONT'D)

Stay focus! Here they come!

The sounds of footsteps crushing gravel can be heard outside. Every step coming closer to his door. Dark silhouettes begin to grow with the red light as the footsteps come closer to the door. They start of human in shape, but slowly grow large curvy horns protruding from the heads. Bat like wings sprout from their sides. Laughter can be heard in the air. Kerth places his finger over the trigger. His body shakes.

APOLLYON (CONT'D)
Don't lose your composure now! They are merely fiends! Light them ablaze!

Kerth points Apollyon to his front door. He remains there, shaken. The fiends outside stopped moving.

Silence fills the air. Kerth begins to show worry in his face.

APOLLYON (CONT'D)
Come one Kerth... I'm starving...

Kerth's expression loosens. Then the silence in the room is disrupted by a knock at the door. Kerth enters a state of concentration and this time with confidence, points Apollyon at the door and fires. The barricaded door is littered with holes. Kerth hears a thump hit his porch outside. He thinks to himself...

KERTH
Again.

Kerth racks back Apollyon and fire again at blinding speeds.
This time most of the door is gone, the red-light spills into the room, and the second thud can be heard. Kerth rushes towards the door and kicks it down in one fell swoop.

EXT. KERTH'S HOUSE

As Kerth steps outside, he notices that the red light is gone. All that's present is the light of the dusk sun shinning form behind the line of trees at the edge of his property. He looks down on his porch to find two bloody corpses of men wearing armed vests, and obscuring their faces with sunglasses and bandanas.

APOLLYON
Oh that was delicious! This taste beats anything I've ever had before!

Kerth looks up to find a large black minivan parked on his driveway. It was impossible for him to see through the dark tinted windows.

APOLLYON (CONT'D)
Look alive Kerth!

Kerth looked back down to Apollyon.

APOLLYON (CONT'D)
There's still one more right in front of ya!

Kerth looked back up again to where the black minivan was, but this time, everything looked different. Instead of the minivan, he found a massive hellhound looking at him, where large fires replaced the trees around his home.

For one last time, the camera faces Kerth head on as he points Apollyon straight forward. We can see down the inside of the barrel's dark abyss.

KERTH
Anything for you, my love!

He fires, the blazing inferno from the barrel consumes the screen.